Alien Chronological Order Series by Alan Dean Foster

Platt & Truant's Alien Invasion series is a great read for anyone searching for the best books about aliens. I love how the plot starts off really quick. Humanity is paralyzed with fear as unknown objects from Jupiter approach Earth. Shaped like giant spheres, they number in the hundreds, and will reach our planet in only six days.

Project Blue Book (TV Series 2019-2020) - IMDb

Encounter with Tiber is a hard science fiction story for fans of space travel and colonization of the Moon and Mars. The long book (570 pages plus a foreword by Arthur C. Clarke and biographies of the authors) contains two related stories framed within a future historian's voyage to Tiber.

Encounter with Tiber by Buzz Aldrin - Goodreads

This story was a random pick which turned out to be a refreshing read. In a world where your capability score is on the hand for all to see, Alrin's score was amongst the lowest. Three powerful guilds ruled all: strength, magic and wisdom. Despite this, Alrin was able to look beyond stats and see all at face value.

Alrin by Kyle King

While I still enjoyed this book, I liked it less than the first one in this series. There was so much destruction of aliens and their worlds. Sure, I understand the idea that Earth and humanity must be kept safe and the best way to do that is to make the bad aliens too fearful of humans to want to try an invasion.

Humans Vs. Aliens (Aliens Series Book 2) by T. Jackson King

This book is the latest edition of the Alien series. The last book, was based on the Isolation game. Like the last book, it's somewhat of a letdown. Predictable, gory and fast moving, it's an entry that should've been more.
