Actually three games in one. Very moronic game. Noahs' Ark was just plain dumb. You simply collect animals from the wild and place them on the ark. Very easy and very repetitive. No variation in difficulty no matter what animal you retrieve, whether it's a lion or rabbit. There all the same. Baby Moses was extremely frustrating.

Two of these frogs are the spring peeper and the Western chorus frog. As temperatures dip below 32 degrees, these frogs start producing their own "antifreeze" to help preserve the most essential organs. Up to 70% of the frog's body can freeze, to the point that the heart stops pumping and the frog appears to be dead.
