One commonly known fact in physics is that you cannot move faster than the speed of light. While that's basically true, it's also an over-simplification. Under the theory of relativity, there are actually three ways that objects can move: At the speed of light

Can Anything Move Faster Than the Speed of Light?

Thus, the particle travels faster than light. Physicists are also testing light's speed limit in cases without the "trick" of quantum tunneling. When something moves at a speed that approaches the speed of light, we call it "relativistic," meaning that our normal ways of adding or combining motions don't apply.

Expansion of Space. After Big Bang, the Expansion of universe took place much faster than the speed of light. The current evidence of the fact can be seen in the phenomenon called Metric Expansion of Space. The rate at which space is expanding is far greater than the speed of light and that is why light cannot travel across the universe.

Can Something Move Even Faster Than Speed Of Light? Impossible

For generations, physicists believed there is nothing faster than light moving through a vacuum -- a speed of 186,000 miles per second. But in an experiment in Princeton, N.J., physicists sent a...

Faster than the speed of light is a song by Yngwie Malmsteen which also is 4 minutes and 30 seconds, the same time as the time allotted (active game time) for completing this achievement. Comment by dgsV Brotip: You can use Invisibility potion to avoid very big pack of troggs. Unfortunately, only once, but it still helps a lot.

Cherenkov radiation (/ tʃ ə ˈ r ɛ ŋ k ɒ f /; Russian: Черенков) is electromagnetic radiation emitted when a charged particle (such as an electron) passes through a dielectric medium at a speed greater than the phase velocity (speed of propagation of a wave in a medium) of light in that medium. Special relativity is not violated since light travels slower in materials with ...

In other words, the faster an object moves, the greater its mass. This only becomes noticeable when an object moves really quickly. If it moves at 10 percent the speed of light, for example, its mass will only be 0.5 percent more than normal. But if it moves at 90 percent the speed of light, its mass will double.

When objects travel faster than the speed of sound, they generate a sonic boom. So, in theory, if something travels faster than the speed of light, it should produce something like a "luminal boom". In fact, this light boom happens on a daily basis in facilities around the world - you can see it with your own eyes.
